TH E following sheets were originally printed as a text-book for the use of Students of medicine in the university of Edinburgh ; it of course contains only sketches of what was more fully delivered in the Professor's lectures. Though the impression formerly made, has been long ago disposed of, the author did not chuse to renew it till he should be at leisure to give it to the public in a more compleat form. But Dr Gregory, who now teaches this branch of medicine, thinking those sketches might be useful to his students, the author has consented to the republication ; and it is now offered to the public in a more correct manner.
